Location Information: Located in the center of Tokyo on a quiet, 12-acre site isolated from urban noise, the Chinzanso garden, in which Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo is situated, is one of Tokyo's most distinguished gardens in Japan. The Hotel has various scenic spots, including a beautiful landscape full of seasonal plants, flowers and trees and a historical site offering a variety of monumental and architectural works of great historical value.

Facility Information: Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo is comprised of four areas: the Hotel building, the Tower building, the Plaza building, and the Japanese Garden. The Hotel has 267 guestrooms, 38 function rooms, 5 wedding chapels and shrines, and 9 restaurants. The wedding facilities are among the largest in Japan.

History of Chinzanso Garden: For more than six centuries, the land surrounding Chinzanso has been home to wild camellias; it was previously known as Tsubakiyama (Camellia Hills). The area was featured in a wood-block print by the famed ukiyo-e wood-print artist Ando Hiroshige (1797-1858).

The current name of the garden, "Chinzanso," was bestowed by Aritomo Yamagata (1838-1922), the most influential member of the group of elderly statesmen known as the Genro in the Meiji (1868-1912) and Taisho (1912-26) eras. Having demonstrated a discerning talent for designing gardens in Kyoto and Odawara, Yamagata bought the site in 1878, and taking full advantage of its unique, rolling landscape, built the origins of Chinzanso, the rinsen kaiyu-style garden seen today.

In 1918, reflecting the wishes of Yamagata, the property was assigned to Heitaro Fujita, a baron and the second owner of Fujita Gumi, a leading general construction company prominent in the financial circles of the Kansai region.

Unfortunately, the gardens were destroyed during World War II, except for the Three-Storied Pagoda, the Shiratama Inari Shrine, the sacred tree some 500 years old, and one warehouse. Reconstruction commenced in 1948 under the direction of Eiichi Ogawa, the founder of Fujita Tourist Enterprises Co., Ltd., whose vision of building a green oasis in Tokyo, including the transplantation of more than 10,000 trees, was completed in 1952. Chinzanso was rebuilt into gardens that are now even more beautiful than in the past. Historically significant, the gardens today continue to attract many visitors.

On January 16, 1992, Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts joined forces with Fujita Kanko Inc. Hotels & Resorts to open the Four Seasons Hotel Tokyo at Chinzanso, the first of its kind in Asia. The business tie-up concluded on December 31, 2012, after which the two facilities combined to reopen as Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo.

One of the most noteworthy structures amongst the many historical sites in the gardens is the Three-Storied Pagoda, otherwise known as Entsukaku. Exactly when it was built is unknown, but it is estimated to have been constructed either in the Heian period (794-1192) or in the Muromachi period (1338-1573). The pagoda, originally located in Chikurinji Temple in Hiroshima Prefecture, was relocated to the Chinzanso garden in 1925 by Heitaro Fujita, and is one of the three oldest pagodas still remaining in Tokyo. Wishing to pass on this historic pagoda from generation to generation, Fujita Kanko Inc. carried out major restoration and seismic reinforcement work on the pagoda in 2010 and 2011; the wooden bodhisattva statue was respectfully enshrined at that time.

Many more historical remnants can also be seen in the gardens: the approximately 500-year old Sacred Tree, Shiratama Inari Shrine, Hannyaji Ishidoro Stone Lantern, Seven Deities of Good Fortune, Rakan Stone Statues, Thirteen-Storied Pagoda, Kokosei Well, and others.

From season to season—camellias in winter, sakura trees in spring, fireflies in early summer, colorful foliage in autumn—the Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo provides the beauty and scenery that has struck a chord within Japanese culture.

Restaurant Information:

Italian Restaurant Il Teatro [Hotel building, 3rd floor]

(82 seats, 2 private dining rooms)

Il Teatro at Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo offers all the authentic aromas and flavors of Italian regional cuisine using specially selected seasonal ingredients. The dining area, with its symbolic Venetian glass chandeliers and the inviting scenery of the garden, is decorated in a European classical style. Il Teatro signifies “the theater” in Italian, and just as the orchestra conductor fills audiences’ hearts with joy, each of our chef’s dishes implies both beauty and enjoyment. Two different styles of private dining room are also available for greater exclusivity. (Private dining rooms cater for 4 to 14 persons.)

Ryotei Kinsui [Garden]

(11 private dining rooms, 2 hermitages)

Kinsui, situated quaintly by the Unkinchi Pond in our garden, is a sukiya-style Japanese restaurant, which refers to the architectural style of polished simplicity adopted for tea ceremony retreats. The restaurant comprises 11 private dining rooms and two hermitage-style rooms in the garden. Guests can admire views of nature's beauty spanning Japan's four seasons from all the rooms. Sophisticated and formal kaiseki cuisine with fresh seasonal flavors is served in accordance with our guests' needs, including family celebrations, entertaining dinners or lunches, and ceremonial engagements. (The individual rooms can seat 2 to 60 persons.)

Zangetsu: Registered as a Tangible Cultural Property in 2004, Zangetsu was previously a tea ceremony house built by Baron Fujita for his villa garden in the Hakone Kowakudani valley, in imitation of the beautiful Zangetsutei estate of the Omotesenke family: one of three families that count the tea ceremony master Sen Rikyu as their founder. It was moved to Chinzanso in 1947.

Choshotei: Choshotei was built in 1954 and was designed by the doyen of the electricity industry, Yasuzaemon Matsunaga.

The current building has been partially built around this structure, which can be used as one of the rooms inside Kinsui.

Japanese Restaurant Miyuki

(104 seats, including 13 sushi counter seats and 9 teppanyaki counter seats, with 2 private dining rooms)

Miyuki features an elegant Japanese garden with stone carvings and magnificent pottery. The restaurant is much beloved by guests, who can experience here all the classics of Japanese cuisine, such as sushi, teppanyaki, tempura, shabushabu (hot-pot dishes), and sukiyaki. Classic Japanese cuisine is served on exquisite Japanese ceramic ware by staff in traditional kimonos. (Private dining rooms are available for 2 to 10 persons.)

Ishiyaki Dining Mokushundo [Garden]

(66 seats, 4 private dining rooms)

Mokushundo consists of six Japanese-style buildings adjacent to our 500-year-old sacred tree in the garden. Featuring a modern Showa atmosphere reflecting the passing of more than half a century, Mokushundo offers original kaiseki cuisine prepared on hot lava stone plates from Mt. Fuji, as well as a unique oil fondue kaiseki course using the chagama (the classic Japanese tea ceremony kettle), among others. Historical Japanese houses have been transformed into private dining rooms. (Private dining rooms seat 2 to 26 persons.)

Mokushundo: These beautiful country houses were given to Chinzanso by Keita Goto, the founder of the Tokyu Group. They were moved from the Nakatsugawa valley in Kanagawa and rebuilt in the Chinzanso garden in 1953.

Gokeian: Chinzanso also received a residence from the Mitsui family. It was moved from its previous location in front of Nijojo Castle in Kyoto and rebuilt in Chinzanso in 1954. The name “Gokeian” is derived from Keita Goto’s name.

Zanso: A traditional-style Japanese house built using wood left over from the main edifice of Chinzanso. Zanso, built in 1953, also houses a cherished autograph of former Prime Minister Aritomo Yamagata.

Shoan: The tea ceremony room, designed and built by Ichizo Kobayashi, founder of the Hankyu Toho group.

Soba Dining Muchaan [Garden]

(28 seats)

Muchaan is located close to the pagoda in the garden, where guests can enjoy the atmosphere of being deep in the woods. Muchaan serves soba noodles made from 100% Hokkaido soba powder, as well as a wide variety of dishes for casual dining or dinner parties. Our chef's seasonal savory kaiseki style course comes highly recommended.

Muchaan: Chinzanso was also gifted with a detached room from the Momiji Ryokan (traditional inn), which was originally located in Hayashimachi in the Bunkyo-ku area and was rebuilt in Chinzanso in 1954. The building is said to have been built during the Muromachi era (1338-1573).

Chuan: This tea ceremony house, originally belonging to a villa owned by Raita Fujiyama, was relocated and rebuilt in Chinzanso in 1951. Mr. Fujiyama was a leading industrialist in the Meiji and Showa periods.

Casual Dining The Bistro [Hotel building, 3rd floor]

(42 seats)

The bistro is an all-day dining restaurant. It serves light meals and reasonably priced wines, as well as more elegant course meals.

Main Bar Le Marquis [Hotel building, 2nd floor]

(55 seats, 1 private dining room)

Our quiet and secluded bar offers a tranquil and dignified European-style atmosphere. (A private dining room is available, seating 2 to 4 persons.)

Lobby Lounge Le Jardin [Hotel building, 3rd floor]

(100 seats)

Floor-to-ceiling windows welcome the beauty of the surrounding gardens into this bright and airy lounge. It is ideal for afternoon refreshments with seasonal scones and selected teas, or for evening cocktails. Le Jardin also has terrace seating overlooking the garden.

Café Foresta [Plaza building, 3rd floor]

(128 seats)

A terrace-like cafe that features an impressive view of the garden from its windows. This majestic view is the greatest of all of Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo's restaurants. Open on Saturdays, Sundays, holidays, and certain special days.

Banquet and Conference Rooms:

Hotel Chinzanso Tokyo is the ideal place for weddings, charity balls, business conferences, and presentations. For meetings and social events of all sizes, a total of 38 versatile meeting rooms and stately boardrooms are available. Our largest room, the Orion room, can accommodate up to 2,000 persons. Our Ballroom boasts European-style furnishings and has a foyer with a terrace overlooking the lush grounds of our garden.

Orion [Plaza building, 5th floor]

(1,350 sqm. [14,531 sqft.], ceiling height 6.2 m, accommodates up to 770 persons in banquet style and 2,000 persons in buffet or theater style)

The largest meeting room in Tokyo, our Orion Room, offers panoramic views of our garden, and can accommodate up to 2,000 persons. It is fully equipped with a large stage, elegant glass chandeliers capable of color changes, and an audiovisual booth. The room can be divided into two smaller rooms, and also has pre-function spaces available.

Ballroom [Hotel building, 1st floor]

(634 sqm. [6,824 sqft.], ceiling height 6m, accommodates 300 persons in banquet style or 500 in buffet style)

Our Ballroom is decorated in soft elegant tones. Its high ceiling is accented by magnificent crystal chandeliers. When combined with the foyer facing the garden and its own outdoor terrace, the Ballroom can accommodate up to 1,000 guests for standing cocktails, parties, and other events.

Amphitheater [Hotel building, 4th floor]

(225sqm. [2,421 sqft.], accommodates 98 persons)

Our Amphitheater is a conference room featuring tiered seating rising sequentially outward from an open arena at the center. This space is unique within the international luxury hotel industry in Tokyo. Designed to meet the requirements of major international conferences, the Amphitheater is equipped with a large 150-inch screen and two 6-light-tube projectors. One of the two projectors is a back-up system intended to prevent any interruption during conferences. The room provides Internet connection and power input for each attendee and is equipped with simultaneous interpreters' booths. The lecture table can be adjusted with a touch of a button from 100 to 115 cm in height, depending upon the preference of each lecturer.

Additionally, our state-of-the-art equipment includes video projectors, slide projectors, video tuners, BS tuners, LAD players, and a sophisticated audio system. The conference room also provides connection jacks for personal computers and an electrically operated OHP screen, screen protection doors, art battens, and lighting battens.

Terrace:

Our Sky Terrace and Verde Terrace, each surrounded by our vast Japanese garden, provide wonderful opportunities for photo shots.

The Sky Garden - Serenity Garden is located on the Hotel rooftop. It offers an open-air space perfect for all kinds of parties and events from wedding ceremonies to casual meals.
